

ARCHAEOLOGY LECTURE - K. LAWSON YOUNGER

Nov. 6, 2014, 7:30 p.m., John Knox Room

"The Aramaeans: The Ubiquitous People Group of the Ancient Near East"

K. Lawson Younger, Professor of Old Testament, Semitic Languages, and Ancient Near Eastern History, Trinity Evangelical Divinity School, Trinity International University

Professor Younger, a recognized authority on the culture and language of the Aramean peoples, will provide an overview of this group as he explains its tribal structures and the complexity of its connections with nomadism. He will outline the rise of Aramean polities in the context of various regional issues and, by looking specifically at two of the many known Aramean entities (Sam'al = modern Zincirli; Gozan = Tell Halaf), he will trace the differences and similarities within the various histories of these polities. Come hear this internationally acclaimed scholar discuss a cultural group that held such close ties to the Hebrews of the Old Testament.

Free and open to the public. More information.
