FINANCIAL AID AVAILABLE FOR PART-TIME STUDENTS

Beginning in fall 2016, Pittsburgh Theological Seminary will offer financial aid to part-time students. Those enrolled in a graduate degree program for six credit hours per term may qualify for need- and merit-based aid as well as a 50 percent discount off the first class.

"We believe that God continues to call people for ministry and we want to make that preparation a reality," said James Downey, vice president for enrollment, planning, and institutional effectiveness.

The standard application process applies to the need-based aid. Merit scholarships are renewable each year based on course load, program duration, and grade point average.
