PITTSBURGH THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY AND FRED ROGERS INSTITUTE OFFER FELLOWSHIP IN THEOLOGY AND MINISTRY

Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and the Fred Rogers Institute at Saint Vincent College have partnered to offer a one-year post-doctoral fellowship in theology and ministry beginning in summer 2024. This fellowship honors the work and legacy of “Mister” Fred Rogers, who graduated in 1962 from the Seminary and whose work is recognized at the Institute. This Fellowship integrates, for the first time, the theological and educational areas of Fred Rogers’ legacy providing tools for parents, caregivers, congregations, and non-profit organizations.

This exceptional opportunity provides a two-semester appointment for an academic post-doctoral scholar to pursue research within the Fred Rogers Archive and teach at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. To align with the Fred Rogers Institute and Pittsburgh Theological Seminary’s areas of focus, preference will be given to researchers emphasizing youth and children’s ministry. The Fellowship will lead to the creation of educational and/or ministry programs or curriculum regarding course subjects or strategies for children and youth consistent with the work of the Fred Rogers Institute, the mission of its sponsoring organization, Saint Vincent College, and the mission of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary.

“Upon being ordained by the United Presbyterian Church, Fred Rogers believed that what he did through ‘Mister Rogers’ Neighborhood’ was an important ministry. He knew that ministry didn’t have to be solely through a parish church or through ordination. He was quoted as saying ‘I think we can all minister to others in this world by being compassionate and caring,’” said the Rev. Dr. Asa J. Lee, president and professor of theological formation for ministry at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary.

Emma Lee, associate director at Fred Rogers Institute, said: “Fred Rogers had a profoundly unique commission as an ordained minister: to serve children and families through public media. Fred lived his faith deeply and served fully for his entire career and life. The Fred Rogers Institute at Saint Vincent College is thrilled to further Fred’s legacy and example through a partnership with Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and through the research and work of our joint Fellow.”
